

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A deflection yoke for a cathode ray tube, with reduced weight and volume plus a low cost of manufacture is obtained by making a ferrite core housed in the deflection yoke very light and thin, based on an optimized design obtained through a number of experimental trials.